What is the Broken Windows Theory? When applied to a downtown area, the Broken Windows Theory suggests that visible signs of disorder, -like graffiti, litter, broken storefront glass, etc, - tells visitors and residents that nobody is watching or cares, which can embolden some to add to the disorder.

Fixing and cleaning up a downtown area triggers an immediate chain reaction that drives economic growth, boosts public safety, and transforms the community's social health. Some of the ways this will show up are:

- Surges in Foot Traffic: Clean walkways and attractive storefronts draw local shoppers and tourists.
- Attracts Private Capital: Public cleanup signals a safe environment, encouraging investors to open new shops, hotels, or restaurants.
- Boosts Property Values: Well-maintained streets and fixed infrastructure lift local real estate prices.
- Fills Vacant Spaces: Upgraded buildings get repurposed into modern offices, boutique retail, or upper-floor housing

Your Jamestown Downtown Association encourages everyone to do what you can to improve our downtown district. It can be as big as installing new windows and signage and as small as pulling a weed out of a sidewalk crack. The small things add up and encourage others to do the big things we all want to see!
